Real Time Electronic Communication

Live reporting service for people who are Deaf or hard of hearing

Note Taking Solutions - Real Time Electronic Communication - Info Sheet

What is Real Time Electronic Communication?

It is a live reporting service for people who are Deaf or hard of hearing. It provides a transcript of verbal communication in professional and academic settings utilising networked laptops and dedicated software.

The communication Facilitator uses two networked laptops and Stereotype Software to provide this service. As the Communication Facilitator types the information into their laptop it is read simultaneously by the client on the second laptop. The resulting transcript can be used as reference material or notes.
